Three men subdued after struggle with patrolman; numerous charges made

Tammy Jackson Staff Reporter
Three Belle Glade men were arrested Dec. 21 on charges of petit theft, assault, battery on a law enforcement officer, and aggravated assault on a law enforcement officer at K-Country Convenience Store, 356 N.W. 16th St., Belle Glade.

According to reports from the Belle Glade Police Department, they (police department) responded to a theft of gas complaint at the store. When Patrolman Ed Suszcynski's arrived at the location, he observed three black males inside the store. Patrolman Suszcynski saw Sam Lane, 22, and another black male attempt to strike the store clerk, Amanda Smith, 18.

When Patrolman Suszcynski attempted to place Lane under arrest, he was attacked by Lane and two other black males. The other two black males were later identified as Claymore Fields, 23, and Kenaskia Workman, 20. Patrolman Suszcynski was able to subdue two of his attackers but the third one was able to flee on foot.

Backup officers with the Belle Glade Police Department were able to apprehend the third attacker, Fields.

The three men were arrested and transported to the Palm Beach County Jail. Lane was charged with petit theft, assault, battery on a law enforcement officer, and resisting arrest with violence. He was booked on $1,000 bond.

Fields was charged with battery on a law enforcement officer, resisting arrest with violence, and aggravated assault on a law enforcement officer. He was booked on $1,000 bond.

Workman was charged with battery on a law enforcement officer, and resisting arrest with violence. He was booked on $1,000 bond.

Local optometrist adds lab, improves patient service

Same day or next day service on prescription eyeglasses is usually something you'd have to go to the coast to get, but for almost a year, Glades residents have had the service here in town.

Dr. Donald Fliehs, Board Certified Optometrist, has a finishing lab which gives same day and next-day delivery on many eyeglass prescriptions.

Dr. Fliehs has been in practice in Belle Glade for over 30 years. His office is located at 309 S.E. Second Street. He is helped in his practice by Mark Vita, a Florida state licensed and Board Certified optician since 1982. He has worked with Dr. Fliehs for over 10 years.

"Putting in this lab is something Mark and I talked about 10 years ago," said Dr. Fliehs.

"When you see these fast service places, you know you have to stay current. We wanted to offer better service to our patients."

Dr. Fliehs's son, Michael, is following in his father's footsteps to become an optometrist. He is currently enrolled in the staff's apprenticeship program and in approximately two years he will be able to take the state board and become licensed as well.

The local optometrist also has the only Visual Fields Analyzer in the Glades. This instrument aids the doctor in the detection and follow-up care of eye diseases such as Glaucoma, cataracts and retinal disorders.

Belle Glade to get new $18 million jail

Tammy Jackson Staff Reporter
Palm Beach County Commissioners have instructed contractors to begin construction of a new $18 million jail in Belle Glade. The commissioners said the 156 bed facility is needed due to the fact the state prisons will begin to take fewer non-violent criminals in 1994.

Even with 888 beds being empty at the county jail on Gun Club Road, the vote to begin construction was won 5-0.

Barry Krischer, state attorney, said revisions in the state sentencing guidelines mean that 20 percent fewer criminals will be accepted into the state prison system.

This means that these offenders will be placed in county jails, or they will simply be let loose.

These offenders will particularly be burglars, drug dealers and other non-violent criminals.

The state attorney made a prediction that the county's current bed space could be used up before 2000.

Mr. Krischer said, "The work the sheriff and I have done in controlling the jail population is about to come to an end. I cannot control these sentencing guidelines."

Man observed in act and arrested; charged with burglary and petit theft

Tammy Jackson Staff Reporter
Patrolman W.T. Murphy responded to a burglary call at 9 N.W. Avenue E. on Dec. 21, 1993. Lora Griffin notified the Belle Glade Police Department that a black male had entered and fled her shed near her residence carrying four gallons of paint.

The $1 million to be used to construct the jail will come from a $260 million bond issue for court and jail expansions that commissioners approved four years ago.

The construction was postponed until 1991 in an effort to save the added cost of personnel and operating expenses.

The task, however, will be complete in November 1995.

Palm Beach County Sheriff Richard Wille urges the completion of the new facility and said, "You'll look back in three years and say it was a wise investment."

Due to the extreme cost of the project, some commissioners voiced their disagreement.

Commissioner Burt Aaronson said, "I don't think we have to put criminals in nice clean beds."

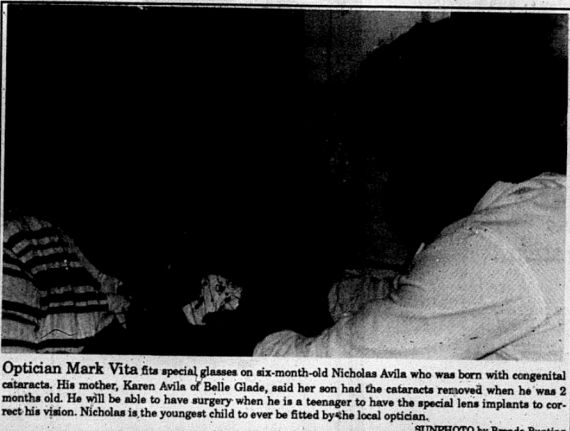

Put 'em out in the mud and slop and places where the mosquitoes can get them."

Comm. Aaronson said he was interested in bringing forth a lawsuit to oppose what he considered unnecessary and extra costs to house inmates.

Commissioner Carol Roberts proposed a separate lawsuit against the state because of the new sentencing guidelines.

Turner was arrested and charged with burglary and petit theft.

He was booked into the Palm Beach County Jail.

Optician Mark Vita fits special glasses on six-month-old Nicholas Avila who was born with congenital cataracts. His mother, Karen Avila of Belle Glade, said her son had the cataracts removed when he was 2 months old. He will be able to have surgery when he is a teenager to have the special lens implants to correct his vision. Nicholas is the youngest child to ever be fitted by the local optician.

South Bay officers save woman's life

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Two South Bay Police Officers were dispatched to Azucena Road after they received a call that a Hispanic female, Julie Guerrero, was not breathing. Upon arrival, Officers Michael A. Bianchi and T. Carey found Ms. Guerrero on the kitchen floor unconscious. The victim was laying on her face and abdomen in a pool of clotting blood.

Officer Carey took over at the scene since he is a certified Emergency Medical Technician (EMT). Officer Carey turned the victim over on her back and took her vital signs. Officer Carey found no heartbeat, no pulse and he said the victim was not breathing.

He said he observed that the victim's flesh had began to change to a blue color. Her entire face and both arms began to take on a blue color. The officer said Ms. Guerrero showed no signs of life.

After instructing Officer Bianchi to retrieve an AMBU-BAG from the trunk of the police car, Officer Carey attempted to ventilate the victim. However, due to the blood clotting in the victim's upper airway, the officer was not able to ventilate the victim.

Firefighter K. Ocoela arrived on the scene and provided Officer Carey with an oxygen tank. The tank, when used in connection with the AMBU-BAG, enabled the victim to be successfully ventilated. When Officer Carey began ventilation, Firefighter Ocoela began assisting with chest compressions. The two some continued with CPR until emergency teams arrived.

Advanced life support procedures began while Officer Carey and Firefighter Ocoela continued with the CPR.

After much medical attention, the victim began to show signs of a weak pulse.

The emergency personnel continued to treat the victim and she was later transported to Glade General Hospital.

Once at the hospital, Ms. Guerrero had a constant heartbeat and a moderate pulse. However, she was still unable to breathe without assistance but she was able to move.

Lifesaving device now available in Florida

R.F. Distributors, Inc., distributor of the popular European lifesaving device, Lifehammer, is making this product available for the first time in Florida.

Lifehammer, invented by Hans Lechner of Germany, works as a supplement to seat belts. "If the car in which you're driving is involved in a serious accident, Lifehammer could be the device that allows you to escape from your vehicle, and thus, saves your life," said Randy Ferman, president of R.F. Distributors.

The Lifehammer is a bright orange hammer-looking device which weighs less than 1 pound. Its hammered points smash windows easily, allowing persons trapped inside a vehicle to escape.

In a recent test performed by the Miami Beach Police Department, a police dive team was able to break tempered puto glass with Lifehammer on the first try while submerged in 27 feet of salt water.

In addition, the device's recesses blade allows drivers to cut seat belts, enabling escape from a trapped wreckage. Last year, the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles reported a total of 196,176 vehicle accidents, with 125,338 persons injured and 2,218 persons killed. Of that total, 5,355 accidents were reported in which a motor vehicle ran off the road into a ditch or culvert, with 5,064 reported injuries and 113 fatalities. A total of 1,370 accidents were reported in which a motor vehicle ran off the road into water with 1,325 injuries and 81 fatalities.

Lifehammer is standard lifesaving equipment in both German and Dutch police and emergency rescue vehicles.

Over 5 million of the devices have been sold worldwide since 1987.

Corps of Engineers warns of navigation danger on Lake Okeechobee

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Jacksonville District has been notified by the Lake Okeechobee Fisherman's Advisory Council that there are potentially dangerous navigation conditions on the lake.

Ron Miedema with the district's South Florida Operations Office in Clewiston explained that there are numerous PVC pipes being placed on the outer edge of the littoral zone adjacent to the boat trails on Lake Okeechobee. "The PVC pipes stand approximately 3 feet out of the water and are very hard to see at low-light periods of the day," Mr. Miedema said.

"We are warning boaters that such structures are present and that they can damage their boats and even result in possible injury to passengers," he said.

"We are asking for the public's help to get the individuals who placed them there to remove them, so we can continue to keep Lake Okeechobee a safe place for recreational boating and other activities."

For further information, contact the Natural Resources Section, U.S. Corps of Engineers, South Florida Operations Office, 525 Ridgeland Rd., Clewiston, Fla. 33440-5399. The telephone number is 813-983-8101.

Many athletic scholarships available each year

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college student athletes. Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused.

A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student athletes. It takes them step by step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a #10 self-addressed envelope to the National Sports Foundation, 611A Willow Drive, P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, N.J. 07755.

4. Don't set your goals too high. While normally I am a strong proponent of the "dare to dream" philosophy, it is important to set goals that you can actually complete (so that you can feel successful).

Notwithstanding T.V. ads that show people who have lost 100 pounds in two weeks, most people who do achieve lasting results do so slowly and in small increments. It is better to tell yourself that you will (for example) lose 5 pounds and do it, rather than sitting there like a lump for a year because you are overwhelmed into inaction by the prospect of trying to lose 100 pounds.

5. A resolution is started by throwing the first stone. Whether your goals for change are grandiose or humble this applies. What this fancy phrase means is that even big results are completed by doing simple little things - BUT YOU HAVE TO START.

6. "Genius is 1 percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration." While I'm handing out famous sayings, I thought this one by Edison would remind you that anyone can make significant changes in their lives if they are willing to work at it.

7. "You can do many new things that you have never done before." This one is my one - it's not particularly catchy but it's true. The fact that most people don't usually make significant changes doesn't mean that they can't. If you are willing to give yourself some attainable goals, make a commitment to them to remind yourself, and be willing to do the tedious but important work to get there; you can become your own superstar. Certainly you can make the next year a little brighter.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

The U.S. Government Bureau of Land Management is appealing to the public to adopt wild horses and burros. These animals are suffering from over population and overgrazing of public rangelands in the West, and placement of the animals with private individuals is a crucial element in solving these problems. Adoption to the public also provides the people of the United States with access to horses for a fee of $125 and $75 per burro. However, it is hard for us to get the word out to the public that these animals are available to them.

About 100 horses and 50 burros will be offered by the government at a temporary adoption in Wauchula, Jan. 14-15, 1994.

We want people to be aware that these horses are available for a small fee, and we need your assistance to help place the animals with private individuals willing to provide them a place to live. Application forms and additional information can be obtained from the Bureau of Land Management, 411 Briarwood Drive, Suite 404, Jackson, Miss. 39206, or call (601) 977-5430.

Only those receiving approval of their applications by close of business on Jan. 4, 1994 will be eligible for the lottery drawing. Numbers will be drawn between 7 - 8 a.m. Jan. 8 to determine the selecting order.

"Walk-up" applicants will not participate in the lottery, but will be accepted on a first-come, first-serve basis. People who wish to adopt horses and burros from the government must sign an agreement to provide proper care and not to either abuse or commercially exploit the animals.

University of Florida tries to save Hurston

By Cindy Spence
News and Public Affairs
University of Florida

When Zora Neale Hurston died a pauper in 1960, workers at the St. Lucie County welfare home where she spent her last years ordered her personal papers burned, not realizing they were discarding a literary treasure.

But a deputy sheriff driving by saw the bonfire and stopped to investigate. He recognized the value of the documents, doused the flames with a garden hose and rescued the author's papers from the fire.

A year later, the six boxes of documents ended up at the University of Florida, ensuring safekeeping for the papers of the author of "Their Eyes Were Watching God" and "Mules and Men."

The letters, photographs and unpublished manuscripts of one of the most noted black women writers were seldom used until the 1970s, when interest in her life and works surged. In the last dozen years or so, no collection at UF's libraries has received the attention that the Hurston Collection has -- not even the Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings Collection -- said Carmen Hurff, curator of rare books and literary manuscripts.

"Just as Zora herself was too versatile to be simply classified as a novelist or anthropologist or dramatist or actress, so also varied are the many types of scholars who consult the papers: biographers, literary critics, anthropologists, historians, political scientists and more," Hurff said. "Some visitors to the collection are merely admirers of Zora and want to feel the words she wrote and the paper she used."

Conservator John Freund began the long task of restoring the brittle and burned papers to a condition that would allow scholars to use them but was delayed by cost and the small size of the conservation unit. Then he and Hurff heard about a grant and seized the opportunity to seek outside funding.

Their proposal was successful, and a company specializing in conservation treatment preserved 278 pages of Hurston's personal correspondence. But six boxes of personal documents await similar treatment, along with the manuscript of Hurston's unpublished novel "Hered the Great."

"There are a couple thousand documents," Freund said. "Right now we can't let people use them or there wouldn't be anything left of them in a very short while."

The cost to complete the project could be as much as $6,000 because of the painstaking process, in which the fragile papers are deacidified and sealed in a polyester film using ultrasonics. The film, called Mylar, provides protection from flooding, insects, mold, "just about anything except intentional damage," Freund said. But the treatment is expensive, at about $1 per 8 1/2-by-11-inch sheet.

The process also is time-consuming, Freund points out, noting that restoration of Rawlings' original manuscript of "The Yearling" took eight months.

"Restoration of rare and special collections is work done a little at a time," Freund said.

"Total restoration of rare books is painstaking. It took eight weeks to repair a 1555 book in Latin. We had it in the freezer for four years after it accidentally fell off a shelf and got wet and moldy."

Although the money needed for preservation "doesn't seem like a lot for the return," Freund said it is difficult to get grants for this type of work.

"It's hard to find someone to give money for specific works, although we received $10,000 from various donors to do some of the Rawlings preservation," Freund said.

Most grant money is going into microfilm because of the rate at which books deteriorating and being lost to the ages.

Microfilm, however, has its shortcomings. A scholar researching Rawlings' work would be left with gaps in knowledge from reading the microfilm since Rawlings' penciled corrections and notes on her manuscripts don't show up well.

University librarian Sam Gowan said UF's is the most active conservation unit in the state, and said it is significant on a national level that the Hurston papers will be preserved.

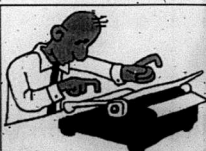

But the unit, including two people who work on repair and Freund and a volunteer working on restoration, cannot handle all the work. Freund worries about the potential loss of valuable documents that cannot be replaced.

"There's a dire need for getting it done quickly to prevent further deterioration," Freund said. "We can't possibly do everything in-house; it would take years and years to get it all done."

Sugar executive vows to fight for farmers rights

Last week I was as proud as I have ever been to call myself a member of the Glades community.

At Clewiston High School and later in Fort Lauderdale and Miami, hundreds of Glades residents showed up to tell the Department of Interior and Corps of Engineers that, if they want to drive us off our land and destroy our communities and lives, they could expect a fight.

The meetings were in the middle of the harvest season. I know that everyone who wasn't able to attend those meetings joins me in thanking those who went and those who spoke.

They stood up for our community, our land and our way of life and they deserve our cheers.

In the last several, I received many calls asking why the government called off the Everglades restoration talks in Washington. I want everyone in the Glades community to get the full story.

So here it is:

The heart of the matter was that the government in Washington didn't want to keep the promises it made to us in July.

As you may remember, in July I went to Washington to sign a Statement of Principles for Everglades Restoration with Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, the Army Corps of Engineers and state officials.

This July "Babbitt" opened the way to saving the Everglades without sacrificing South Florida's 40,000 farm-related jobs.

It mapped out the limited areas of our region to be flooded and the vast majority

An Open Letter to the Glades Community By J. Nelson Fairbanks, President and Chief Executive Officer, United States Sugar Corporation

ty that was not.

It said how much we were to pay the government and when.

It included a technical plan for improving water flows that would have given South Florida's cities and farms, as well as the Everglades, the water they needed, when they needed it, in the way they needed it and in exchange, it promises us 20 years of environmental peace.

That was July.

We learned recently that in September, at the same we were trying to negotiate peace, those same federal officials in the negotiations secretly convened an Administration-wide task force on Everglades restoration.

By early November, the task force had in hand the plan that the Corps of Engineers held its hearings on here in Florida -- a plan to do to South Florida farmers what the Mississippi River floods did to farmers in the Midwest this summer -- wipe us out and in our case, forever.

The plan's goals start with flooding 30 percent of all EAA land -- including South Bay, Belle Glade, Canal Point and Lake Harbor -- and go on to flooding everything.

This is a total betrayal of the Babbitt Agreement's letter and spirit.

In late November and early December, we repeatedly asked the federal government to agree to have nothing to do with this terrible plan and to instead, guarantee that they are sticking by their July commitments.

In reply, we were told by letter that the task force plan was going according to official instructions.

Right up to the moment Interior called off the talks, I hoped something could be worked out. I could not believe that the Administration would just throw its pledges in the waste basket.

Not only that, but the July Babbitt Agreement pledged the government both to restoring the Everglades and, as it said, "maintaining agriculture". Then, on the last day of talks, we were told point blank by senior federal officials that preserving South Florida agriculture is not Administration policy.

I want every Glades resident to know that in every decision I make, I constantly think about you, your families and your communities.

I want every Glades resident to that I will never accept an agreement that dooms farming. I will fight that kind of agreement with my last breath.

We have a long, hard struggle ahead, but I am confident we will win. Not because we are powerful.

For compared to those against us, we aren't. But because we are right.

At the Corps of Engineers meeting at Clewiston High School, a lady from Pahokee stood up and told the Corps representatives the truest words that I've ever heard:

"Look around you if you want to see who will beat you," she said. "It will be the little people like me. We will beat you."

Against powerful environmental lobbies and big government agencies, all of us are little people.

If all of us -- from every part of our community stand together, if we continue to make our voices heard in every meeting, at every forum, before every elected representative, I believe she was right.

We will win an environmental peace that allows farming and farmers to survive. We can, we must, we will win.

Sincerely yours,
J. Nelson Fairbanks,
President and Chief Executive Officer

Donations to foster kids greatly appreciated

Cindy King, the manager of McDonalds in Belle Glade, donated over 100 gifts to the Patch Foster Care Network.

These gifts were given to the Foster Care children in the Glades area on Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1993.

Cindy worked hard and dedicated a lot of time and effort into this Christmas event for the kids.

We would like to thank Cindy King and McDonalds Corporation for their contribution.

Did you know...

The first Christmas trees in America (that we know of) were those decorated for children in a German church settlement in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Trees were decorated on Christmas morning in 1747. These Christmas trees, however, weren't real trees! They were wooden pyramids covered with evergreen boughs. Candles, apples and poetry verses were used to decorate the boughs of these first Christmas trees.
